Picture: Paramount Pictures/20th Century Fox/Lightstorm Entertainment's first Academy Awards ceremony took place in the summer of 1929, and it celebrated movies in 1927 and 1928. There were only 12 categories and the whole ceremony lasted 15 minutes. It wasn't broadcast on TV or radio, and there were two Best Picture awards. They were called Outstanding Image and Unique and Artistic Feature. Film Wings won Outstanding Picture. Sunrise won a unique and artistic feature. The Academy dropped the Unique and Artistic Feature Award the following year and tested the Outstanding Picture award over the next three decades. Hollywood announced that Wings was the first film to win the night's highest honor, and in 1962, the Academy established the name Best Picture. The top prize has been marked as such ever since. There have been 91 Best Pictures, and not all of them have been good. Some have been terrible, and some are life-changing. Some have dominated the box office and some have flopped. In 2016, the most recent black-and-white film was released to win best picture. The first color film won in 1940. No real comedy has ever won, but many Best Picture winners claim to be comedies. Only one horror movie has won. Only three films have swept the main categories, and only one film has gone from 11 to 11. Do you name these best picture winners just in a screenshot? Serving birthday cake, especially for children, is a tradition that reportedly goes back to the Middle Ages. Even today, nothing quite says it's your birthday like a cake. While a classic leaf pan or layer of birthday cakes may be a birthday message and candles, it's not the only way to go. A birthday cake should surprise and delight the recipient, so it can be something playful and fun like a caterpillar cake or a colorful piñata cake, or just a good old-fashioned chocolate cake. If your favorite cake is a cheesecake or pineapple upside down cake, in any case it is. If you're looking for easy making cakes, ice cream cakes and icebox cakes don't require baking, but are sure to impress. Other no-bake options include stacked crepe cakes and cake made from ice cream sandwiches. Here we collected 15 of our best and most beautiful birthday cake ideas, so you can treat a friend or loved one (or just yourself) with a fantastic sweet treat. Credit: Turcotte911 These adorable cupcakes are decorated to look like frogs thanks to marshmallows, chocolate chips and a little green sugar and green food coloring. Using cake mix and packaged icing makes this birthday cake idea super easy. Reviewer Cookies recommends using different gummy candies to give frogs different expressions. You need a lot of buttercream icing to coat all four layers, made by dividing the two layers in half. The finished cake can be decorated with chocolate curls made from a vegetable peeler and a slightly softened chocolate bar. Credit: Doughgirl8 This cake is made from many crepe stacked on top of each other with a thin filling between each layer. Chef John was going for a lighter style, but says this technique really shines when you use a more traditional cake filling like buttercream. Once chilled, you'll get even more fancy defined layers. Recipe creator Heather Walker recommends having kids help decorate it using licorice whips with antennae and gumdrops. He also says you can use any flavor cake mix or bundt cake recipe. Recipe reviewer Catlover 1952 recommends using pineapple juice instead of water cake mix and using pineapple tidbits and rings instead of crushed pineapple for a firmer texture. Be sure to plan ahead; although the cake does not take long to make, it bakes for 45 minutes, rests for an hour and then needs to cool the room and finally cool until chilled, for at least 3 hours, or overnight. Credit: Kim If strawberries and chocolate are tempting, you'll love this layered shortcake. For best results, use the latest strawberries and homemade whipped cream. Recipe reviewer Pamela Ziegler says it's easy to make and adds a teaspoon of almond extract to the batter to enhance other flavors. This bright colorful cake is made with one batter, but each of the four layers can be in different shades thanks to just a few drops of gel food coloring. Colorful sprinkles and candies make this cake as exciting as a real piñata. Advertising Credit: Chef Mo Something could be cuter than those cupcakes that look like ice cream cones. You need to flat at the bottom of the cones, and be sure to fill the cones quickly before baking so the batter doesn't melt the cones. Decorate everyone differently or make it a project for children. Credit: Yoly Another cake that combines many favorite flavors, thin chocolate chips with biscuits is layered with a rich and creamy combination of heavy cream, mascarpone cheese, sugar, espresso and vanilla extract. When chilled, biscuits and cream meld together magically form a cake. Credit: yadr This light ice cream cake is made from crusty chocolate waffles and filled with cheeky cranberries, vanilla ice cream, and lots of whipped cream on top. While it's not hard to do, it doesn't take time to chill, so plan to make it the day before serving it. Recipe reviewer Crystal made the pudding using half and a half instead of milk for an even richer and creamier filling. Credit: Katherine Martinelli When is a cake not a cake? If it's a watermelon decorated look like a cake! Slices of watermelon get filled with birthday cake treatment slathering melted chocolate and colorful candy sprinkles. Be sure to cut the watermelon sliced pie shaped wedges before decorating to make the serving easy. Credit: Tricia Doughnut holes in cakes with these brilliant cake pops. The job is all decorating. You have to find lollipop sticks, then use painted candy coating melts and sprinkles to make cake pops of edible works of art. Advertising I pay attention to food trends because I write about food, but they don't affect my food choices. Some trends are not surprising, such as bacon fanaticism in recent years. Some are incredibly surprising, such as the growing trend in the U.S. to eat guinea pig. Today I read that birthday cake is the biggest trend in food taste at the moment, and I'm confused. What tastes like a birthday cake? The taste is popping yogurt, popcorn, candy, iced tea, and will soon be released on M&M's; Taste. There's even a birthday cake flavored with vodka. (Can't we stop forging vodka, please?) But who decided what taste of birthday cake is so that it add all these non-cake items? Bacon flavor? It's pretty clear what it is, but a birthday cake? My birthday cakes growing were always chocolate - Dunkin' Hines Devil's Food to be exact. My kids' cakes are chocolates, too, but I make them from scratch. Two of my best friends from my childhood who had birthdays just days apart were always Italian Rum Cake as their birthday cake when we celebrated. I did a quick survey on Facebook and asked my friends what a taste of birthday cake is for them. Here are some answers: Strawberry ShortcakeMint Chocolate Chip Ice Cream Cake, Chocolate Chocolate Puddin BlendChocolateYellow Cake Vanilla IcingAngel Food Cake, Fruits and Real Whipped Cream On The SideChocolate Cake Chocolate IcingChocolate Cake Buttercream Icing Yellow Cake Whipped Cream Icing Ice Cream Cake... Carvel course Yellow cake chocolate icingCherry chip cake cherry-iceChocolate/chocolateDevils food chocolate icing What I see here is a vanilla flavored cake trend, not a birthday cake flavored trend. Taste the birthday cake, I think, is whatever your favorite birthday cake is, not what anyone says it is. Now, if you're wondering who can be the last authority on what birthday cake tastes like, I'm going to leave you two more burning questions. What's in icing and icing? Does it matter? Are these hard crunchy things sprinkled, jimmies or funfetti? funfetti?
